The Art of Sally Morgan - Sally Morgan 1996-01-01

Sally Morgan is one of Australia's most dynamic Aboriginal artists. Her work is bold, vibrant and provocative. This is the first published collection of her work, exhibited in Australia and overseas to wide acclaim. It provides an invaluable record of the development of her art from 1986 to 1995, including a number of her black and white prints as well as her major works in acrylics and oils, and a biographical introduction by her sister. Art has always been at the core of Aboriginal culture, embodying its spirituality and telling its story. In the twentieth century it has also become a vital medium through which Aboriginal peoples record and reclaim their history, and in so doing define their own identity. The Art of Sally Morgan is a celebration of Aboriginality, of spirituality, of life, of death, of pain, of strength - of survival.

Aboriginality in Sally Morgan's MY PLACE - Eleni Theodoridou 2005-11-13

Seminar paper from the year 2004 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies - Culture and Applied Geography, grade: 1,3, University of Wuppertal, course: S: Australian Life Writing, 3 entries in the bibliography, language: English, abstract: The topic of my seminar work is "Aboriginality in Sally Morgan's My Place". In order to write about Aboriginality in this specific case it is necessary and very important to first define this term. What do we understand by 'Aboriginality'? Where does the word 'Aboriginal' come from and who/what is Aboriginal? What problem is there about identity? What was the Aboriginal past like? Only when we have a clear concept of these terms and have a general idea about the context we can move on to the actual topic of this work, namely to analyse Sally Morgan's (auto)biography and find out which of the aspects occur in her book and of what importance they are. Therefore the main part of this work is subdivided into two parts: Firstly the definition of the central terms and a short historical background and secondly the analysis of the primary literature with regard to the mentioned points. Finally I will sum up the results of my research in a short conclusion.
